

Energy Waves Wellness Ltd.

Monthly Compass

December 2025: The Sacred Crossroads

December doesn't simply mark the end of a calendar year; it functions as the final threshold of our spiritual and psychological journey for the last twelve months. It is the cosmic closing argument—a sacred crossroads where we stand with one foot in the past and the other poised for the future. This month is deliberately packed with astrological alignments and energetic turning points that are designed to test our resolve and deepen our awareness, ensuring we don't carry old baggage across the New Year's finish line.

The fact that December is the twelfth month is astrologically significant, as it mirrors Pisces, the twelfth and final sign of the zodiac. Pisces rules dreams, closure, spirituality, illusions, and the collective unconscious. This energetic resonance is amplified exponentially by the current Neptune in Pisces transit, a cycle that began in 2011 and is now nearing its conclusion.

December is ultimately not about rushing toward resolutions—it's about completion with consciousness. A resolution is a promise made in the future; completion is an action taken now. We are being invited to meticulously review the year, shed the layers of illusion and outworn self-concepts, and integrate the hard-won lessons into our core being. This conscious integration is the final step in realigning with a truer, deeper sense of purpose before we step into the new year and a fresh vibration of being.

The true power of December lies in this final, deliberate act of letting go, ensuring that the next chapter begins from a place of integrity, wisdom, and genuine renewal.

"Every ending is the echo of a beginning – clarity born from chaos, light reborn through truth."

Energy Wave One: Progress Requires Patience

Date: December 8

Mars square Saturn, Sagittarius 25°15'

The Energy:

When Mars squares Saturn, friction meets endurance. These two planets—often called the cosmic malefics—push us to our limits, testing both willpower and patience. Mars in Sagittarius wants to take bold leaps, to move, explore, and break free from restriction. Saturn in Pisces, however, moves slower, guided by intuition, emotional sensitivity, and spiritual caution. The tension between them can manifest as frustration, exhaustion, or even burnout if we ignore the need for pacing.

This is the last time Mars will square Saturn in Pisces for three decades, marking a turning point in how we handle boundaries and motivation. Something in our Sagittarius area wants to expand, but Pisces whispers, “not yet.” Instead of fighting the resistance, we can use it as a signal to refine our direction and align short-term efforts with long-term meaning. Progress now requires patience, discipline, and faith in divine timing.

Energy Tip:

Don't push blindly forward. Pause. Listen to the emotional undercurrents. Growth born from integrity lasts longer than a rush for instant results.

“Patience is not the ability to wait, but how you act while you're waiting.”
— Joyce Meyer

Journal Prompt:

How can I bring more discipline and structure to my dreams without losing inspiration?

Notes

Energy Wave Two: The Veil Lifts

Date: December 10
Mars square Saturn, Sagittarius 25°15'
Neptune Direct, Pisces 29°22'

The Energy:

The tides are shifting. Neptune, ruler of dreams, intuition, and illusion, stations direct at the final degree of Pisces — the sign it has quietly moved through for the last 14 years. This is the last full wave before Neptune's long journey into Aries begins, and its message is simple yet profound: let go. Closure is calling. The fog begins to lift, slowly revealing the truth behind what we once couldn't name.

At the same time, Mercury in Scorpio opposes Uranus in Taurus — a sudden awakening, a flash of realization that disrupts the surface calm. What's been buried now demands expression. Secrets, insights, and revelations pour through, connecting the dots between what's been hidden (Scorpio) and what's been shaken loose (Taurus).

Together, these transits weave a day of deep clarity and emotional truth. It's as if the universe is clearing the psychic waters before Neptune's next cycle begins. The key is not to cling to the old stories or resist what's being revealed — instead, breathe through the release and stay open to new frequencies of understanding.

Energy Tip:

Trust what surfaces now. Even if it feels unsettling, it's the beginning of renewal. What's ending was never meant to anchor you in illusion — it was meant to teach you how to see.

The truth will set you free, but first it will shatter the illusion that kept you comfortable.

Notes

Journal Prompt:

How does clarity change the way I relate to trust — in myself, in others, in the universe?

Energy Wave Three: Moving Through the Fog

Date: December 14

Mars square Neptune | Sagittarius 29°22' – Pisces 29°22'

The Energy:

Mars in fiery Sagittarius meets Neptune in watery Pisces one last time — a clash between momentum and mystery, action and surrender. This marks the final square between these two before Neptune leaves Pisces, echoing a familiar lesson: when the path ahead is unclear, forcing it won't make it appear any faster.

Mars wants to move. It seeks truth, adventure, and forward motion. But Neptune wraps the horizon in mist, whispering, “not yet.” This can stir feelings of confusion, lethargy, or disillusionment — especially if we're trying to rush toward something we haven't yet defined. The energy asks us to pause, breathe, and reconnect to purpose before proceeding.

The fog will lift — but only after we learn to move with intention rather than impulse. This is a moment to trust invisible progress, align your short-term efforts with your soul's long-term vision, and remember that sometimes stillness is its own form of movement.

Energy Tip:

When in doubt, rest the fire. Let intuition guide your next step instead of force. Clarity will return as your inner tides settle.

“Faith is taking the first step even when you don't see the whole staircase.”

— Martin Luther King Jr.

Journal Prompt:

When the fog lifts, what kind of direction or truth do I want to find waiting for me?

Notes

Energy Wave Four: Grounded Action

Date: December 15
Mars enters Capricorn | 0°00'

The Energy:

After days of moving through the fog, Mars steps into Capricorn — the sign of discipline, integrity, and long-term vision. Here, our fiery drive meets the mountain's edge. The pace slows, the air sharpens, and impulse transforms into intention.

Mars doesn't always love this terrain; Capricorn demands patience, strategy, and accountability. Yet this is where passion becomes progress. It's no longer about how fast we can move, but how strong our foundation is. This shift invites us to think before acting, to channel frustration into purposeful motion, and to find empowerment in consistency.

Our focus narrows now — we see what truly matters and what no longer deserves our energy. Emotional reactions fade as determination takes the lead. If you've been scattered or uncertain, this transit brings a clarifying call: commit to your climb. The energy rewards those who work with structure rather than against it.

Energy Tip:

Slow down to move stronger. Every step taken with awareness builds lasting momentum.

"Discipline is the bridge between goals and accomplishment."
— Jim Rohn

Journal Prompt:

What structures or routines could help me stay aligned with my purpose?

Notes

Energy Wave Five: The Weight of Wisdom

Date: December 15

Sun square Saturn | Sagittarius 25°28' – Pisces 25°28'

The Energy:

The Sun in Sagittarius meets Saturn in Pisces in a tense square — a moment where light encounters shadow, and freedom meets responsibility. This is not a time for shortcuts or avoidance. Saturn demands maturity, and under this influence, we may feel the weight of our choices, limits, or commitments pressing more heavily than usual.

Where Sagittarius seeks truth and expansion, Saturn reminds us that meaning requires structure. We are being asked to refine our vision — to slow down, take responsibility, and choose what truly matters. Saying no becomes a sacred act of self-respect. The friction between inspiration and discipline can feel constricting, but it's shaping the next layer of integrity in who we are becoming.

This square asks: who am I when things get hard? How do I define success — by freedom alone, or by the wisdom that comes from earning it? Clarity arrives through boundaries, and strength through restraint.

Energy Tip:

Honor your limits, not as barriers but as teachers. The path narrows now so that your light can focus, not fade.

"Boundaries are the distance at which I can love you and me simultaneously."

— Prentis Hemphill

Journal Prompt:

How does responsibility support — rather than restrict — my personal freedom?

Notes

Energy Wave Six: The Final Surrender

Date: December 20

Sun square Saturn | Sagittarius 25°28' – Pisces 25°28'

The Energy:

The Sun in Sagittarius forms its final square to Neptune in Pisces — a moment that won't return in our lifetime. This is the last dance between ego and spirit, clarity and illusion, as both luminaries meet at the edge of their journeys through Jupiter's realms. Sagittarius seeks truth through knowledge; Pisces seeks truth through surrender. Together, they remind us that both wisdom and faith are needed to see beyond the veil.

The atmosphere is hazy yet holy — a test of trust and authenticity. Our outer confidence (Sun) may blur under Neptune's mist, inviting humility, compassion, and spiritual awareness. The tension between what we want to believe and what we feel to be true can surface through themes of home, family, or emotional safety, as Jupiter's current placement in Cancer highlights where our roots crave healing.

This is a call to release self-deception and let compassion lead the way. Clarity will not come through logic, but through stillness. Let your heart interpret what your mind cannot yet grasp.

Energy Tip:

Loosen your grip on how things "should" look. The universe is dissolving what no longer supports your truth. Trust that what remains is what's real.

"You must let go of the life you planned so as to have the life that is waiting for you."

— Joseph Campbell

Journal Prompt:

How do home, family, or emotional roots mirror where I need healing or forgiveness?

Notes

Energy Wave Seven: Love Meets Reality

Date: December 20

Venus square Saturn | Sagittarius 25°37' – Pisces 25°37'

The Energy:

Venus in fiery Sagittarius longs for passion, freedom, and wide-open possibility. Saturn in Pisces, meanwhile, whispers of limits, responsibilities, and emotional truth. When these two square off, we're asked to examine the tension between adventure and stability, between what we want now and what will truly last.

This aspect can feel like love hitting a wall — not to punish, but to protect what's real. Saturn reminds Venus that deep connection, creative fulfillment, and abundance all require patience and structure. The spark is still there, but it's being refined into something sustainable.

Under this influence, relationships, finances, and creative goals might feel tested. You may question whether what excites you can endure, or whether your longing for freedom clashes with your responsibilities. The truth? You can have both — if you move with awareness, patience, and respect for timing. This is a moment to root your passion in reality, not to dim it, but to make it stronger.

Energy Tip:

Slow the pace of desire. Let your heart and your higher self align before taking the next step. Balance makes beauty last.

"Love is not about possession. It's about appreciation."

— Osho

Journal Prompt:

Where in my life am I craving freedom but needing structure?

Notes

Energy Wave Eight: When the Fog Fades

Date: December 23

Venus square Neptune | Sagittarius 29°25' – Pisces 29°25'

The Energy:

As Venus in Sagittarius forms her final square to Neptune in Pisces, we stand at the edge of illusion and truth — the final veil between what we wish for and what is. This is the last time Venus and Neptune will meet in this way before Neptune leaves Pisces, marking the end of a 14-year cycle of romantic idealism, blurred values, and spiritual longing.

Neptune's mist has softened edges, stirred dreams, and sometimes blurred boundaries in love, finances, and creativity. Venus now questions what's real. Are we still chasing the fantasy, or are we ready to see the truth with compassion? This energy invites gentle awakening — clarity through the heart rather than the mind.

There's a sense of release here: illusions dissolving so genuine connection can emerge. We may feel disillusioned or tender, but it's through this moment of honesty that true alignment forms. The fog lifts not to expose pain, but to show us where love, creativity, and abundance can finally take root in reality.

Energy Tip:

Allow yourself to see clearly without judgment. The truth revealed now frees you to love and create from authenticity, not illusion.

When the fog lifts, don't mourn what fades — celebrate what was true all along.

Journal Prompt:

Am I ready to walk beyond the horizon — or am I still holding onto the clouds?

Notes

Energy Wave Nine: Love with Intention

Date: December 24
Venus enters Capricorn | 0°00'

The Energy:

As Venus steps into Capricorn, the energy of love, beauty, and value becomes grounded, intentional, and mature. After wandering through Sagittarius's hopeful horizons and Neptune's fog, Venus now seeks stability — something that lasts beyond a fleeting spark. The year's end brings clarity: what are we building, and who or what is truly worth our time and devotion?

This transit invites us to take love and purpose seriously — not in a restrictive way, but in a way that honors growth and commitment. Relationships, finances, and creative goals benefit from patience and steady effort. There's a quiet wisdom here, a sense that what's real will stand the test of time.

With Venus in Capricorn, we're not chasing potential anymore — we're choosing substance. We look ahead to 2026 with intention, refining our long-term goals and investing our energy where it can grow sustainably. Love becomes an act of loyalty; creation becomes a devotion to excellence.

Energy Tip:

Move with quiet confidence. What you value now becomes the foundation for what blooms next year.

"Discipline is choosing between what you want now and what you want most."
— Abraham Lincoln

Journal Prompt:

What am I ready to invest my time, energy, and love into as 2026 approaches?

Notes

Energy Wave Ten: The Pause Before Progress

Date: December 30

Mercury square Saturn | Sagittarius 26°04' – Pisces 26°04'

The Energy:

As the year draws to a close, Mercury in Sagittarius meets Saturn in Pisces in a challenging square — a reminder that clarity, patience, and grounded thinking are needed before we step into what's next. Words may come slowly, plans may feel delayed, and communication could feel heavy or misunderstood. It's as if the universe has quieted the noise so we can listen for truth beneath the surface.

This transit asks us to slow down and think practically. Inspiration alone won't move us forward — we need structure and a clear plan to give our dreams form. The energy can feel restrictive or frustrating, especially with the New Year on the horizon, but this is not a stop sign — it's a moment of integration.

Use this time to refine your goals, clarify your priorities, and consider how to bring your visions into tangible reality in 2026. Balance your big ideas (Mercury in Sagittarius) with emotional and spiritual grounding (Saturn in Pisces). Wisdom grows when we learn to be patient with our process.

Energy Tip:

Let silence speak. The universe is helping you edit your story before a new chapter begins.

Clarity doesn't come from rushing ahead — it comes from the courage to pause

Journal Prompt:

What dreams need clearer structure or planning before they can grow?

Notes

Your Compass, Your Voice, Your True North

As the final embers of 2025 fade, we are reminded that endings are never just endings — they are initiations. What falls away this month was never meant to carry forward. The discipline we've cultivated, the truths we've faced, and the illusions we've released all prepare the ground for something lasting and luminous in 2026.

Walk gently, breathe deeply, and trust what's being restructured within you. The path ahead is clearing — not by force, but through faith, patience, and alignment. December is where wisdom crystallizes and the soul steadies its step before the dawn of a new era.

We extend our heartfelt gratitude to all those who support Energy Waves Wellness Ltd.

Follow us:

FB: Energy Waves Wellness Ltd.

IG: @energywaves_wellness

YouTube: @EnergyWaves444

Website: www.energywaves.ca

Copyright © 2025 by Pamela Yakelashek
Energy Waves Wellness Ltd.
All Rights Reserved

